Alain Trudel - Trombone

Combining sheer talent with unmistakable flair and a good sense of humour, Alain Trudel has already convinced critics and public alike that the trombone is an instrument of power and glory. Winner of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra Soloist Competition and the Canadian International Stepping Stone Competition, he has held the position of First Trombone with the Orquestra Ciutat de Barcelona (1986-87) and has since then performed as guest soloist with over 20 orchestras in North America and in Europe.

In addition to his solo career, Alain can be found playing with the Alain Trudel Jazz Ensemble, the Nouvel Ensemble Moderne and directing or performing with the Ensemble de Cuivres Philharmonia. He also composes and has transcribed many works ranging from early to romantic music.

Guy Few - Trumpet/Piano

Guy Few possesses an extraordinary double talent. He is both a highly acclaimed concert pianist and trumpeter.

Mr. Few has appeared with many of Canada's major orchestras including the Toronto Symphony, Winnipeg Symphony, Edmonton Symphony and the Vancouver Symphony. In each of the past three seasons has played over 80 concerts as a solo recitalist, in collaboration with accordionist Joseph Petric in OPEN LINE, and with trombonist Alain Trudel.

During the 1993 summer festival season Guy Few returned to the theatre and played the title role in "AMADEUS" during the inaugural season of the Beaverton Summer Arts Festival.
