CANADIAN CONCERTS

The newest season of White Rock Concerts, one of the longest-lived arts organizations on the Peninsula, starts on Oct. 18, 7:30 p.m., at the series' usual venue, White Rock Baptist Church (1657 140 St.)

First concert of the season (on Oct. 18) will feature the renowned Cheng Duo – siblings Bryan Cheng (cello) and Silvie Cheng (piano).

Their programme, entitled Unravelling Ravel, will present music by such impressionists as Spanish composer Manuel de Falla, French composers Claude Debussy and Maurice Ravel, and impressionism-adjacent Russian composer Modest Mussorgsky, finding a common linking thread is the influential work of Ravel.

Although the subscription concert series has been around for almost 70 years, artistic directors Elizabeth and Marcel Bergmann (the internationally acclaimed Bergmann Piano Duo) continue to find new and exciting ways to present world-class classical music, close to home, for audiences of all ages.

At $180 per seat for the season (and only $60 for students up to the age of 25) White Rock

Concerts is an unrivalled deal compared with the per-ticket price for other concerts of this calibre, and there is no longer the waiting list to become members, that was customary in pre-COVID times.

It's also a proudly Canadian series – all of this year's artists, while of international stature, are all Canadian-born or based in Canada.
